I was talking to the telegraph editor of the Register not long ago about some of his editorials on the tariff question and reminded him of how in 1884 he used to come out daily with the declaration that if the Democratic party would get into power they wouldn't think of tampering with or reducing the tariff, and that the platform of 1884 called for as high a protective tariff as the Republican platform of that year. His answer was that they had "misinterpreted its meaning then, but know-what it means now." I hope they do.
